COURSE SUMMARY

This virtual, facilitated course guides you through the advanced stages of designing and implementing effective violence against women (VAW) prevention programmes. Through interactive learning and practical application, you will learn about the key steps of a programme journey, the guiding principles of prevention work, and the essential elements of successful programming. You will also learn to navigate opportunities and constraints to make the best possible decisions for effective programming.

Throughout the course, you will have opportunities to collaborate with other practitioners and share experiences and insights to enhance your learning journey. This course is free, and those who successfully complete the course requirements will earn a certificate from the Prevention Collaborative. As part of a comprehensive suite of online learning opportunities, this course is designed to strengthen the capacity of practitioners and implementing organisations to design and deliver quality VAW prevention programmes. It provides the advanced knowledge and skills essential for progressing to deep-dive courses in the Learning Lab.

GOAL

You will strengthen your capacity to design and implement effective prevention programming under typical constraints.

OVERVIEW

The course will follow key steps in programme design, implementation, and evaluation, specifically highlighting steps or processes that are often rushed or skipped and may require strategic decision-making.

The course has eight virtual sessions:

1. Welcome
2. Understand the Context
3. Envision Change
4. Plan for Success
5. Plan for Learning
6. Experiment
7. Realise

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

By the end of the course, you will be able to:

- Recognise the key steps and decision points in the programme design, implementation, and evaluation process.
- Understand the motivations and constraints that shape prevention programming, including donor perspectives.
- Assess and make decisions about what is feasible (and likely to be effective) given existing constraints and develop alternatives.
- Envision the specific desired changes in behaviours, attitudes, etc., among relevant actors.
- Feel confident in your ability to negotiate with donors and other stakeholders on elements necessary for effective programming.
- Apply processes and tools from the course to your violence prevention programming.

FORMAT

We know how much we can all learn from one another, so this course is designed to maximise participation and learning between participants. It will be facilitated by members of the Prevention Collaborative who bring deep experience in prevention programming design. Weekly sessions will involve participant sharing, presentations, and group work. Take-home assignments will reinforce and deepen learning. Please note that the course will be conducted in English Language.

The number of participants is limited to ensure this engagement. We will contact you to confirm your participation or suggest other opportunities such as taking our other courses.

PARTICIPANT PROFILE

This course is intended for individuals who manage and design prevention programmes and have some experience with programming on violence in the family. Programme managers, designers, technical advisors, and MEL consultants would benefit most from this course.

You should be prepared to consider how the course material can be applied to your experience and context and be willing to share it with others.
